

I'm opposed to any further consolidation of radio/broadcast television/cable television/satellite services.

The public interest is not well served now, and will continue to degenerate as long as public service consists largely of catering to the ratings. Until genuine public service programs are banned from producing revenue, the only public that is served is the mass audiences satisfied with stupidity masking as entertainment.